

Medical Unit Will Present Cane Award

Tarrant Physician
To Receive Honor
At Ceremony Friday

Tarrant County Medical Society will give its annual gold-headed cane dinner at 6:30 p. m. Friday to present the physician in this area voted the "doctor's doctor" of 1961.

The dinner will be at River Crest Country Club.

Name of the winner is withheld until the program. Only doctors who have been members of the medical society for at least 25 years are eligible to receive the award. There were 92 in this category this year.

Doctors who vote must have been members of the society at least 10 years.

The award is given on the basis of such qualifications as professional standing, good citizenship, personal friendship and integrity.

Historically a gold-headed cane has symbolized high standing in medicine. Previous winners of the award here were the late Dr. C. C. Terrell, Drs. May Owen, R. J. White, R. G. Baker, Tom Bond, Edwin G. Schwarz, L. O. Godley, DeWitt Neighbors, C. P. Hawkins and T. H. Thomason.

I would preface my remarks in passing on to my successor this Gold Headed Cane by expressing again my deep appreciation of being its keeper for the past year. It has been for me a very gratifying experience; I didn't need its support but it was good for my morale.

The Gold Headed Cane tradition stems from a book written by one Dr. William MacMichael of London and first published in 1827. In this book the Cane tells something of its experiences and the characters it met while in possession successively of six prominent London physicians.
Its "Life" began in 1689 when its first master, John Radcliffe, entered medical practice. At his death in 1714 it was passed on to Richard Meade, in 1754 to Anthony Askew, in 1774 to William Pitcairn, then in 1791 to David Pitcairn, and in 1809 to Richard Baillie. At Baillie's death it became a museum piece, and together with its companion the professional wig passed out of circulation.

Ten years ago a similar Gold Headed Cane was given by Dr. Porter Brown to the Tarrant County Medical Society to be presented each year at this time to the doctor chosen to carry it for the next year. The head of the Cane is engraved with the inscription: "Presented to the Tarrant County Medical Society by Dr. Porter Brown December 1951", and on the gold rings of its shaft are inscribed the names of the distinguished recipients of this award.

The Gold Headed Cane idea really took shape in the mind of another present this evening, and very appropriately, it is now his turn to receive the Gold Headed Cane. This doctor whom the Tarrant County Medical Society is delighted to honor tonight had his remote beginnings out where the west begins. He was graduated at Old Central High School, and took his B.A. Degree at the University of Texas. I first knew him in embryology class where he set the pace and the pressure on the rest of us by his exact and meticulous drawings of microscopic anatomy. He was Captain of the Varsity Basket Ball team. After teaching science for two years in the Austin High School he went on to graduate in medicine at the University of Texas Medical Department in Galveston where he was elected President of the Student Body, and where afterward he taught as Adjunct Professor of Anatomy. He was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon and Phi Alpha Sigma fraternities, also of the honorary Alpha Omega Alpha. He planned originally to be a surgeon, but the blood, sweat, toil, and tears incident to the pursuit of that branch of medicine dimmed for him its glamour and sent him into a more dignified and less gory field of endeavor. He has practiced his chosen specialty for many years during which he has been active in professional, church, civic, and hospital affairs. He has been president of more organizations than I can enumerate here, including the Tarrant County Medical Society and the Texas Club of Internists. He has been a member of the House of Delegates of the Texas Medical Association and has served as Vice-President of that Association. Currently he is a working director on several Boards. He is a Fellow of the American College of Physicians and a member of the Methodist Church. As teacher, scholar, civic leader and doctors' doctor he eminently deserves the honor this Society is glad to confer of being the 1961 recipient of the Gold Headed Cane Award.

Dr. McVeigh: By vote of your peers of the Tarrant County Medical Society you have been selected Custodian of the Gold Headed Cane for 1961.

You have been weighed in the balances and have NOT been found wanting. By your conduct and by your attainments thru years of service to your patients, to your fellow doctors, and to your community you have been judged worthy to guard for the coming year this symbol of professional eminence. It is honorable recognition that is richly deserved and that will always be a source of gratification to you, to your family, to your patients and to your friends. It is now my pleasure and rare privilege to deliver into your hands the Tarrant County Medical Society's GOLD HEADED CANE.

Joe: Here is a copy for your Gold Headed Cane file. I did not have to stretch the truth a bit and in fact the above is an understatement. I am glad that I had the pleasant duty of passing the Cane on to you —
 Sincerely,
 H. H. H.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen -

My good wife, Dorothy, my daughter, Judy, and my sister, Blanche, the 3 women in my life, and I are indeed happy and grateful that I have been selected for this great honor for 1961. I personally feel that it is the highest honor the Society can bestow. When one considers that each member of the Society writes down the names of 5 doctors he feels are eligible for this award, ^{wife} only God looking over his shoulder, one feels very humble.

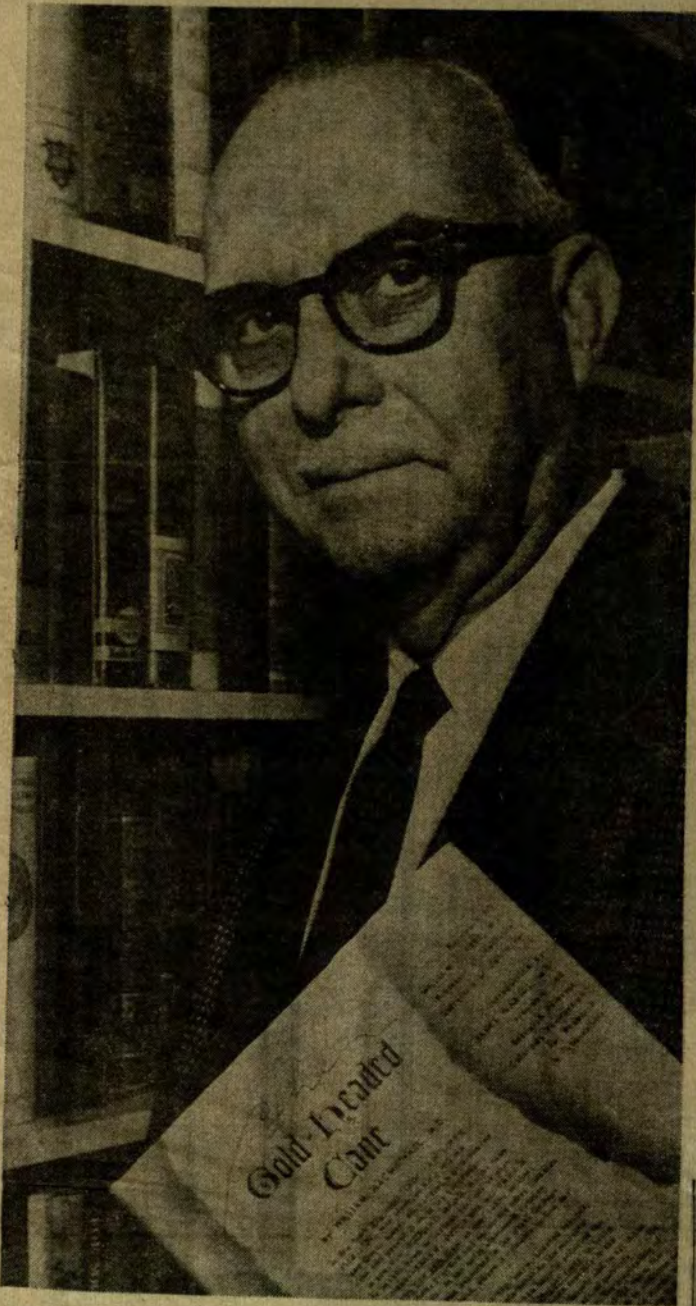

This dinner is twofold in its purpose. I feel that the honoring of the doctor's wife at this time is fitting. We are very grateful to ~~our~~ ^{our} wives and families for the part they have on the team working for better patient care. I am especially pleased that Lois Deaton was present to give the invocation.

Ladies and Gentlemen I shall bear the Cane proudly and I hope with dignity.

Dr. McVeigh Is Day And Night Physician

Dr. Joseph McVeigh . . . hard-earned tranquility. — Press Staff Photo.

By JEAN WYSATTA

The tall, silver-mustached man moved toward a glass wall of his den. He pulled the draperies to command a private view of the golden season.

Autumn had laced the trees with gold and red. They tumbled down a gentle slope to the banks of the Trinity and west toward the horizon.

The man was Joseph F. McVeigh, M. D., who had given a good part of his life to be able to enjoy the scene with tranquility. Now he did — while wearing a royal blue smoking jacket.

HE COULD TOUCH a mosaic table he'd recently made. He could glance over to see a bronze sculpture he'd made of his wife. And nearby there were detective stories to be read. Some like Arthur Conan Doyle were for re-reading.

This was Dr. McVeigh on the eve of receiving his highest honor — the Gold Headed Cane awarded him by Tarrant County Medical Society Friday night at River Crest Country Club.

The cane annually goes to "a doctor's doctor" who is chosen by an unsigned "silent vote" among doctors themselves.

Dr. McVeigh, at home at 4800 Crestline, was the picture of a man at ease but yet still on the job in a way because he had a telephone in his room.

The look through his horn-rimmed glasses was somber when he said:

"I BELIEVE in seeing a patient day or night. Night if need be. My patients know that."

A ring of the telephone, a serious call and he could have been off to his offices at Coffey Clinic.

He says he was born "too many years ago" in Fort Worth. He was one of four children born to the Scotch-Irish Mr. and Mrs. William M. McVeigh. Father once owned a moving van business.

Miss Blanche McVeigh, Fort Worth artist, was one of those four children.

After graduation from old Central High, he went to the University of Texas to study medicine. But after three years and a sprint on the school basketball team, the young Joseph McVeigh ran out of money.

There was a necessary recess to teach science three years at Austin High School.

THEN, WITH HIS pockets jingling just enough, he went to Galveston to enter medical school. In 1920 he graduated, later interned a year at Cleveland.

The doctor and his wife had one daughter, Judy. Miss McVeigh is curator of Fort Worth Art Center museum.

After 37 years of practice in his home town, Dr. McVeigh remembers the first $10 he made. It was for administering an ether anesthetic.

Although he's had many professional tributes, perhaps the place where he's best-loved is at St. Joseph Hospital. He's been called "the father" of the present staff organization and also of the hospital's nursing school.

HE IS PAST CHIEF of staff at St. Joseph and past chief of medicine. He is also a past dean of the school of nursing.

His "pasts" include many ranks. He is also a past president of Tarrant County Medical Society.

Currently he is first vice president of St. Joseph Hospital advisory board.

Friday night the genteel-talking doctor was handed the gold headed cane by his predecessor, Dr. T. H. Thomason. But perhaps no other summed up the evening's sentiment so well as a friend and cane-winner himself. He was Dr. C. P. Hawkins, president of the society, who said:

"He's the kind of doctor that a doctor would trust with his own family."

Award Given To Dr. McVeigh

BY BLAIR JUSTICE
Star-Telegram Science Writer

Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, internal medicine specialist, was named Friday night as the 1961 winner of the goldheaded cane award of the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration, was turned over to Dr. McVeigh by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason, at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

Each year members of the local medical society cast secret ballots on the physician here they consider to be a "doctor's doctor" — a person of professional skill, personal integrity and friendship. Only doctors who have been members of the society for 25 years or more are eligible for the award. There were 92 in that category this year.

Dr. McVeigh has been in practice in Fort Worth since 1924, when he helped establish the Coffey Clinic, 306 W. Broadway, where he still has offices.

He was born and reared in Fort Worth, was graduated from old Central High School and took his premedical training at the University of Texas.

Dr. Thomason first knew McVeigh as a classmate at the university. "He set the pace for us in embryology with his highly exact drawings of microscopic anatomy," Dr. Thomason said. "He was also known as the captain of the basket ball team."

Before entering the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston, Dr. McVeigh worked two years as a teacher of chemistry and zoology at Austin High School.

He was graduated from medical school in 1920 and interned at Charity Hospital in Cleveland. After internship he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School before entering practice in his home town.

Research work he did at medical school was recently cited in a textbook on neurology written by a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala.

Dr. McVeigh and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd., on the same street and only four blocks away from last year's goldheaded cane award winner. The McVeighs have a daughter, Judy, who is

Dr. McVeigh Honored By Fellow Physicians

In pre-World War I days at the University of Texas there was a tall (6-foot, 2½-inch) young man who began making a name for himself in two widely separated fields.

Among his fellow premedical students Joe McVeigh became noted for the highly exact drawings he made of cell structures in microscopic anatomy.

Among followers of a sport that was to become one of the biggest in America, Joe McVeigh was known as the captain of the University of Texas basket ball team.

Friday night, almost a half century later, Dr. Joseph Fielding McVeigh — his basket ball and microscopic anatomy behind him — received recognition for the reputation he has made among his fellow physicians in Tarrant County.

Historic Symbol

By secret ballot he had been voted the "doctor's doctor" of 1961 and was presented the goldheaded cane of the Tarrant County Medical Society at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

The presentation was made by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason.

A goldheaded cane has historically been a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration.

Young Joe, born in Fort Worth, made up his mind to be a physician while in the 7th grade at the old Fifth Ward Elementary School here.

But after completing his premedical course at Texas, McVeigh had to lay out a couple of years to make enough money to go to medical school. He turned to teaching. From 1913 to 1915 he was a chemistry and zoology teacher at Austin High School.

Finally, he went on to Galveston to get his M. D. at the University of Texas Medical School.

Dr. McVeigh said that by the time he finished a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland there was a mild depression that made it inadvisable to start practice. So he returned to teaching.

This time he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School. One piece of research he did was so enduring that only a few years ago a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala wrote a textbook on neurology in which Dr. McVeigh's contributions at Galveston were noted.

In 1924 Dr. McVeigh returned to his native city and in July of that year helped establish the Coffey Clinic at 306 W. Broadway, where he still practices internal medicine.

He and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd. They have a daughter, Judy, who is curator at the Fort Worth Art Center.

Still interested in teaching, he was dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing. He also was chief of staff at the hospital.

He is a former vice president of the Texas Medical Association, and past president of the Texas Heart Association and Texas Club of Internists.

Currently Dr. McVeigh, 68, is on the board of the Fort Worth Heart Association and the Carter Blood Center. He is a member of the first Methodist Church.

Two former winners of the goldheaded cane, Drs. R. J. White and DeWitt Neighbors, escorted Dr. McVeigh to the rostrum to receive the award.

Speaker at the dinner was Dr. Murray M. Copeland of Houston, assistant director for education at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and also professor of oncology at the university's Postgraduate School of Medicine.

Dr. Copeland urged that doctors pass on to the "young physicians of tomorrow" the "rare and precious qualities of faith, intellectual honesty, intellectual curiosity, equanimity, courage and empathy."

curator at the Fort Worth Art Center.

A sister, Miss Blanche McVeigh, also was present to see the doctor receive his award.

Dr. McVeigh has held posts in a long list of organizations. He is former dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing and past chief of staff at the hospital. He is a former vice president of the Texas Medical Association and past president of the Texas Heart Association and Texas Club of Internists.

Currently, Dr. McVeigh is on the board of the Fort Worth Heart Association and Carter Blood Center. He is a member of First Methodist Church.

Gratitude Expressed

In presenting the award to the 68-year-old internist, Dr. Thomason said:

"By your conduct and by your attainments through years of service to your patients, to your fellow doctors, and to your community you have been judged worthy to guard for the coming year this symbol of professional eminence. It is honorable recognition that is richly deserved and that will always be a source of gratification to you, to your family, to your patients and to your friends."

In receiving the award, Dr. McVeigh expressed deep gratitude for being selected for "this highest honor from the medical society."

He paid particular tribute to his wife and family and said that all doctors should be grateful for the part their families play "on the team for better patient care."

He said he would strive to "bear this cane with honor and dignity."

Speaker at the dinner was Dr. Murray M. Copeland of Houston, assistant director for education at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and also professor of oncology at the university's Postgraduate School of Medicine.

Doctor Quoted

Dr. Copeland said: "It is for us now to see to it that every opportunity of training is offered the young physicians of tomorrow, that they may have more adequate armamentaria to do battle with the scourges that afflict mankind and to gain the heights of enduring accomplishments."

"It is well that we embody in our teaching of the healing art the philosophy of the Divine Physician. Inherent in such philosophy are certain rare and precious qualities. Among these are faith, intellectual honesty, intellectual curiosity, equanimity, courage and empathy."

Dr. C. P. Hawkins, president of the Tarrant County Medical Society, presided at the dinner.

He introduced guests and presented previous winners of the goldheaded cane award. Past winners are the late Dr. C. O. Terrell, Drs. May Owen, R. J. White, R. G. Baker, Tom Bond, Edwin G. Schwarz, L. O. Godley, DeWitt Neighbors, Hawkins and Thomason.

The New Holder of the Goldheaded Cane

Upon completing his pre-medical course in 1913, a certain young University of Texas student interrupted his studies and turned to teaching. He went to Galveston after two years, however, and received his M.D. at the University of Texas School of Medicine.

Again after a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland the teaching profession again beckoned him. But in 1924 he returned to the practice of medicine never to depart from it again.

It is well for the medical profession, for his many patients and for the innumerable good causes he has served over the years since that he finally made that decision, which he had first embraced as a seventh grader in a Fort Worth elementary school. For he is Dr. Joe McVeigh, who has just been awarded the goldheaded cane by the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol of respect and admiration in the profession, will be in his possession for one year. The award bespeaks the esteem in which Dr. McVeigh is held by his medical colleagues. Without doubt it is representative also of the high regard in which he is held by the many who have benefited by his professional excellence.

His contributions to the community and his profession, though primarily through the Coffey Clinic on W. Broadway, which he helped establish in 1924 and where he still practices internal medicine, have been made through many avenues of service. He has been dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing, vice president of the Texas Medical Association and president of the Texas Heart Association.

Appropriately, he was instrumental in establishing the annual goldheaded cane award some 10 years ago to bring recognition to those of outstanding ability and performance in medical practice. We join his friends and colleagues in congratulating him on having now received that award and in thanking him for the services he has rendered in earning the right to possess it.

Dear Joe -

We have just learned, by way of Missouri, that you have been selected as custodian of The Gold Headed Cane for the coming year. We are both delighted and feel that there is no one who deserves it more.

We are not too happy over the kind of weather we are having. It is both muddy and muggy out our way. I do hope we have some improvement soon for it make Johns outside work so much harder. We are getting a lot of eggs and it keeps us busy -

Much love to each of you.

Dear Joe,

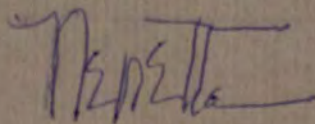

My first thought on hearing of the latest honor to come your way, was to send you a telegram...but they always sound so cold and never say what is truly in ones heart.

Now, I can say with a great sincerity that comes straight from my heart, "It could'nt happen to a nicer, more deserving guy" and the only fault I have to find, is that they did not present you with a diamond headed cane many years ago.

You have known for many years what I feel in my heart for you, Dorothy and Judy too.....not only for the services you have rendered to the entire Carter family, but for the most understanding and devoted friend-ship you have shown me all thru the years. I do not see enough of you, but I guess I am just too d--d healthy, but I have the satisfaction of knowing that when I do need you, you will come a-running even in your pajamas.

Bless you and yours now and always, for your unstinted and loyal services to your profession, but most of all for that human touch which you possess which brings help and comfort thru your gentleness to your many friends and your patients as well.

With great devotion and all good wishes,
So believe me sincerely,

Dear Dr. Joe,

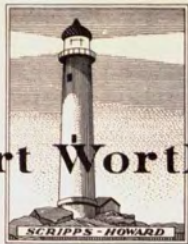

I was so thrilled to pick up the paper this morning and read where you had received the wonderful award of the Gold Headed Cane. All I can say is that it is about time they gave it to you. In my opinion , it is long overdue. I onle wish I could have been there, but I didn't get in from NY last night until too late.

Am so proud that you have received this acknowledgment of your wonderful services all these years, and Lee joins me in sending you and Dorothy and Judy our congratulations.

Dear Dr. McVeigh:

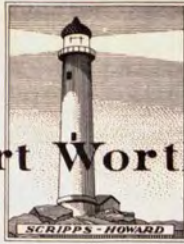

Although I am very, very late in telling you so, I think one of the nicest things that happened in Fort Worth during this year was the award of the cane to you by your associates in the Tarrant County Medical Society.

I assure you the high regard in which your associates hold you is shared by all in our community who have ever crossed your path.

I hope it doesn't take the Christmas spirit to remind me of my manners the next time a high honor comes your way.

A very merry Christmas to you,

MEMO

We congratulate you as well as the Tarrant County Medical Society as a most deserving recipient of the gold-headed cane award and the things it symbolizes.

Our part of Texas is blessed with many fine and wonderful doctors. You very well represent them and the things they respect about their profession which make it a sacred ministry to them.

Sincerely,

Best recollections I have of you, when I began training for my own field of service in 1937, was your present interest and activity at Coffee Clinic and Saint Joseph. If it was medical, Dr. McVeigh was the one to whom all eyes turned!

Like the good teachers we recall the image I carry of you has never changed in my mind's eye.

So they didn't really need to give you the Gold Headed Cane for me to feel that you are one of our best physicians, but I am happy that you received the honor, and in so doing they too honor your family - for without their understanding help your success and happiness in life could not have come

Dear Joe:

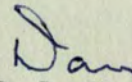

I want to tell you how proud Ethel and I were when we saw your picture in the Star Telegram receiving the gold headed cane. I don't feel like congratulating you so much as I do the Medical Society for their wisdom in choosing you for this honor.

We have a daughter, Mrs. Bob Bachman, living in Graham, and Bob, who is a rancher, takes the Star Telegram. Barbara had heard us speak of you many times and cut the article out of the Star Telegram and sent it to us.

I'm sorry we didn't make the trip to Denver. The real reason for my not going is that I honestly am a little too handicapped to enjoy myself like I would like to. My back, which has bothered me a great deal in the past year and a half won't allow me to be up too long at a time. I can't stand up at a cocktail party to save my neck. I can't drink liquor because my stomach cuts up too much. So actually there's not much reason for me going, but I miss being with that group. They are my favorite people in this world and both Ethel and I would rather be with that Texas Club of Internists group than any other group.

I am proud to be on a first name basis with so distinguished a colleague.

The New Holder of the Goldheaded Cane

Upon completing his pre-medical course in 1913, a certain young University of Texas student interrupted his studies and turned to teaching. He went to Galveston after two years, however, and received his M.D. at the University of Texas School of Medicine.

Again after a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland the teaching profession again beckoned him. But in 1924 he returned to the practice of medicine never to depart from it again.

It is well for the medical profession, for his many patients and for the innumerable good causes he has served over the years since that he finally made that decision, which he had first embraced as a seventh grader in a Fort Worth elementary school. For he is Dr. Joe McVeigh, who has just been awarded the goldheaded cane by the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol of respect and admiration in the profession, will be in his possession for one year. The award bespeaks the esteem in which Dr. McVeigh is held by his medical colleagues. Without doubt it is representative also of the high regard in which he is held by the many who have benefited by his professional excellence.

His contributions to the community and his profession, though primarily through the Coffey Clinic on W. Broadway, which he helped establish in 1924 and where he still practices internal medicine, have been made through many avenues of service. He has been dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing, vice president of the Texas Medical Association and president of the Texas Heart Association.

Appropriately, he was instrumental in establishing the annual goldheaded cane award some 10 years ago to bring recognition to those of outstanding ability and performance in medical practice. We join his friends and colleagues in congratulating him on having now received that award and in thanking him for the services he has rendered in earning the right to possess it.

THE MINISTER'S STUDY

Dear Dr. McVeigh:

I cannot tell you how pleased I was to pick up the paper the other morning and learn that you had been singled out for honor by the Tarrant County Medical Society. This is surely recognition that you highly deserve and you have many friends outside the medical profession who have taken genuine personal satisfaction in your having received it. Count me among them!

Congratulations and best wishes.

Dear Dr. McVeigh:

It could not have happened to a more dedicated, deserving member of Tarrant County Medical. Again I congratulate you on being the recipient of the 1960 Gold-headed Cane.

Maybe I should congratulate all the voting members of Tarrant County Medical for their good judgment.

The Star Telegram had two good pictures and reports; however, I like this editorial.

All good wishes, may you never need the cane as a physical support, but be assured it will ever be a psychological one.

Sincerely,

Gold Cane Winner—

Dr. McVeigh Is Day And Night Physician

By JEAN WYSATTA
Press Staff Writer

The tall, silver-mustached man moved toward a glass wall of his den. He pulled the draperies to command a private view of the golden season.

Autumn had laced the trees with gold and red. They tumbled down a gentle slope to the banks of the Trinity and west toward the horizon.

The man was Joseph F. McVeigh, M. D., who had given a good part of his life to be able to enjoy the scene with tranquility. Now he did — while wearing a royal blue smoking jacket.

HE COULD TOUCH a mosaic table he'd recently made. He could glance over to see a bronze sculpture he'd made of his wife. And nearby there were detective stories to be read. Some like Arthur Conan Doyle were for re-reading.

This was Dr. McVeigh on the eve of receiving his highest honor — the Gold Headed Cane awarded him by Tarrant County Medical Society Friday night at River Crest Country Club.

The cane annually goes to "a doctor's doctor" who is chosen by an unsigned "silent vote" among doctors themselves.

Dr. McVeigh, at home at 4800 Crestline, was the picture of a man at ease but yet still on the job in a way because he had a telephone in his room.

The look through his horn-rimmed glasses was somber when he said:

"I BELIEVE in seeing a patient day or night. Night if need be. My patients know that."

A ring of the telephone, a serious call and he could have been off to his offices at Coffey Clinic.

He says he was born "too many years ago" in Fort Worth. He was one of four children born to the Scotch-Irish Mr. and Mrs. William M. McVeigh. Father once owned a moving van business.

Miss Blanche McVeigh, Fort Worth artist, was one of those four children.

After graduation from old Central High, he went to the University of Texas to study medicine. But after three years and a sprint on the school basketball team, the young Joseph McVeigh ran out of money.

There was a necessary recess to teach science three years at Austin High School.

THEN, WITH HIS pockets jingling just enough, he went to Galveston to enter medical school. In 1920 he graduated, later interned a year at Cleveland.

The doctor and his wife had one daughter, Judy. Miss McVeigh is curator of Fort Worth Art Center museum.

After 37 years of practice in his home town, Dr. McVeigh remembers the first $10 he made. It was for administering an ether anesthetic.

Although he's had many professional tributes, perhaps the place where he's best-loved is at St. Joseph Hospital. He's been called "the father" of the present staff organization and also of the hospital's nursing school.

HE IS PAST CHIEF of staff at St. Joseph and past chief of medicine. He is also a past dean of the school of nursing.

His "pasts" include many ranks. He is also a past president of Tarrant County Medical Society.

Currently he is first vice president of St. Joseph Hospital advisory board.

Friday night the genteel-talking doctor was handed the gold headed cane by his predecessor, Dr. T. H. Thomason. But perhaps no other summed up the evening's sentiment so well as a friend and cane-winner himself. He was Dr. C. P. Hawkins, president of the society, who said:

"He's the kind of doctor that a doctor would trust with his own family."

Fort Worth, Texas.

Dear Joe:

I want to tell you that there could be no greater or more genuine appreciation than that which the children and I have for each and every one of the countless things you did for Marjorie, and I also want you to know that my admiration of your personality is only equalled by that for your skill in your chosen profession.

I have had many a heartache but never one flowing from lack of confidence and satisfaction in you or what you had to do or suggest. I know that on many occasions I imposed unduly on your patience and good nature and for your personal kindness I am likewise grateful. Insofar at least as you are concerned I have the deepest satisfaction in knowing that nothing which could or should have been done was overlooked. If I knew how to voice any higher praise I would give it expression.

Sincerely yours,

Vic Tomlinson

Dear Joe:

With most of my erstwhile associates in Fort Worth, out of sight has long been out of mind but certainly that is not true of my staunch and wonderful friend, Pearle Buck. She was good enough to send me a clipping from the Star-Telegram issue of November 18th describing the tribute that had been paid to you by your professional colleagues.

I have long harbored a deep sense of obligation to you. Accordingly I am most grateful that I have one friend who would bear me in mind and thereby afford me a chance to use the occurrence as an opportunity to say what a wonderful medical adviser and friend you have been to the Tomlinsons over many, many years. I know that Dorothy, Blanch and Judy all must feel very gratified at this honor which has come your way and in our own way that is certainly true of all of the members of my family.

Hearty congratulations and best wishes for the Holiday Season to you and yours,

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Mc Veigh,

About the nicest thing that happened to me since I came to California was the wonderful news of you getting the "Goldheaded Cone Award". Congratulations to you! You deserve that award not only once, but hundreds of times. I'm tickled pink and so happy that I don't know how to put it in words.

When I read the paper clippings I went to the Chapel to say "Thank you" to the good Lord for doing that special favor for you and asked Him to take care of you for many a year. I pray for you every day, but this was an extra special one.

I surely enjoyed every word of the articles. They are most interesting giving your background and all that you have done and are still doing for the rest of us ailing people. No one knows that better than I during all the years in the past. And no one appreciates you and your services more than I do. I guess that's why I'm always so very happy when something nice comes your way. You certainly were nice to have Rita send me the news. Thanks a million for them. Tell Rita I'll give her a big hug the first time I see her for this pleasant surprise.

I like Porterwilll Ok., but I'm still a 100% to Dejan and I get homesick for good old Cow Town sometimes. I guess it's cause my best friends are there.

I have a rather easy job, 30-4th grade youngsters who are very easy to teach. So for some extra activity I work in the yard with the flowers. The other day I did quite a bit of spade work. The next day I had a sharp pain under my shoulder blade. Had you been here I'd have gone to you to see if I had pleurisy. I diagnosed the case myself "shoulder pains," and sure enough I was right. I enjoy yard work and expect to have some real good looking flowers.

I hope that you are keeping well and not working too hard. Hello to Rita and the Coffey Clinic gang. My best wishes and special prayers for you always. Sister Lawrenceia

Dear Dr. McVeigh:

The dedicated men of medicine are surely soldiers of the Lord. As one of those really noble men, you now are the "proud possessor" of a symbol of your service to man & to Him. CANE AWARD curator at the Fort Worth Art Center.

A sister, Miss Blanche McVeigh, also was present to see the doctor receive his award.

Dr. McVeigh has held posts in a long list of organizations. He is former dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing and past chief of staff at the hospital. He is a former vice president of the Texas Medical Association and past president of the Texas Heart Association and Texas Club of Internists.

Currently, Dr. McVeigh is on the board of the Fort Worth Heart Association and Carter Blood Center. He is a member of First Methodist Church.

Gratitude Expressed

In presenting the award to the 68-year-old internist, Dr. Thomason said:

"By your conduct and by your attainments through years of service to your patients, to your fellow doctors, and to your community you have been judged worthy to guard for the coming year this symbol of professional eminence. It is honorable recognition that is richly deserved and that will always be a source of gratification to you, to your family, to your patients and to your friends."

In receiving the award, Dr. McVeigh expressed deep gratitude for being selected for "this highest honor from the medical society."

He paid particular tribute to his wife and family and said that all doctors should be grateful for the part their families play "on the team for better patient care."

He said he would strive to "bear this cane with honor and dignity."

Speaker at the dinner was Dr. Murray M. Copeland of Houston, assistant director for education at the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute and also professor of oncology at the university's Postgraduate School of Medicine.

Doctor Quoted

Dr. Copeland said: "It is for us now to see to it that every opportunity of training is offered the young physicians of tomorrow, that they may have more adequate armamentaria to do battle with the scourges that afflict mankind and to gain the heights of enduring accomplishments."

"It is well that we embody in our teaching of the healing art the philosophy of the Divine Physician. Inherent in such philosophy are certain rare and precious qualities. Among these are faith, intellectual honesty, intellectual curiosity, equanimity, courage and empathy."

Dr. C. P. Hawkins, president of the Tarrant County Medical Society, presided at the dinner.

He introduced guests and presented previous winners of the goldheaded cane award. Past winners are the late Dr. C. O. Terrell, Drs. May Owen, R. J. White, R. G. Baker, Tom Bond, Edwin G. Schwarz, L. O. Godley, DeWitt Neighbors, Hawkins and Thomason.

Award Given To Dr. McVeigh

BY BLAIR JUSTICE
Star-Telegram Science Writer

Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, internal medicine specialist, was named Friday night as the 1961 winner of the goldheaded cane award of the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration, was turned over to Dr. McVeigh by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason, at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

Each year members of the local medical society cast secret ballots on the physician here they consider to be a "doctor's doctor" — a person of professional skill, personal integrity and friendship. Only doctors who have been members of the society for 25 years or more are eligible for the award. There were 92 in that category this year.

Dr. McVeigh has been in practice in Fort Worth since 1924, when he helped establish the Coffey Clinic, 306 W. Broadway, where he still has offices.

He was born and reared in Fort Worth, was graduated from old Central High School and took his premedical training at the University of Texas.

Dr. Thomason first knew McVeigh as a classmate at the university. "He set the pace for us in embryology with his highly exact drawings of microscopic anatomy," Dr. Thomason said. "He was also known as the captain of the basket ball team."

Before entering the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston, Dr. McVeigh worked two years as a teacher of chemistry and zoology at Austin High School.

He was graduated from medical school in 1920 and interned at Charity Hospital in Cleveland. After internship he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School before entering practice in his home town.

Research work he did at medical school was recently cited in a textbook on neurology written by a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala.

Dr. McVeigh and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd., on the same street and only four blocks away from last year's goldheaded cane award winner. The McVeighs have a daughter, Judy, who is

Goldheaded Cane

Dr. McVeigh Honored By Fellow Physicians

BY BLAIR JUSTICE
Star-Telegram Science Writer

In pre-World War I days at the University of Texas there was a tall (6-foot, 2½-inch) young man who began making a name for himself in two widely separated fields.

Among his fellow premedical students Joe McVeigh became noted for the highly exact drawings he made of cell structures in microscopic anatomy.

Among followers of a sport that was to become one of the biggest in America, Joe McVeigh was known as the captain of the University of Texas basketball team.

Friday night, almost a half century later, Dr. Joseph Fielding McVeigh — his basketball and microscopic anatomy behind him — received recognition for the reputation he has made among his fellow physicians in Tarrant County.

Historic Symbol

By secret ballot he had been voted the "doctor's doctor" of 1961 and was presented the goldheaded cane of the Tarrant County Medical Society at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

The presentation was made by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason.

A goldheaded cane has historically been a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration.

Young Joe, born in Fort Worth, made up his mind to be a physician while in the 7th grade at the old Fifth Ward Elementary School here.

But after completing his premedical course at Texas, McVeigh had to lay out a couple of years to make enough money to go to medical school. He turned to teaching. From 1913 to 1915 he was a chemistry and zoology teacher at Austin High School.

Finally, he went on to Galveston to get his M. D. at the University of Texas Medical School.

Dr. McVeigh said that by the time he finished a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland there was a mild depression that made it inadvisable to start practice. So he returned to teaching.

This time he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School. One piece of research he did was so enduring that only a few years ago a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala wrote a textbook on neurology in which Dr. McVeigh's contributions at Galveston were noted.

In 1924 Dr. McVeigh returned to his native city and in July of that year helped establish the Coffey Clinic at 306 W. Broadway, where he still practices internal medicine.

He and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd. They have a daughter, Judy, who is curator at the Fort Worth Art Center.

Still interested in teaching, he was dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing. He also was chief of staff at the hospital.

Santa Visit Depends on Generosity

BY CATHERINE GUNN

"How can I tell the children that Santa will not be coming to see them this year?"

This is from a letter to the Goodfellows written by the mother of seven children.

Any parent would know how this mother feels—just how much there is behind her words.

She wrote that she would be thankful if "you" would see that Santa would come to see her children.

"Anything would be appreciated," she writes.

Won't you help her and hundreds of other mothers hoping their children will not be without presents Christmas morning by sending your contribution to the Star-Telegram Goodfellow Fund?

Three Tarrant Towns Balloting

Residents of Azle, Euless and Sansom Park were voting Saturday on a water and sewer bond issue, a home rule plan and a street and drainage bond issue, respectively.

Early reports from the polls indicated a "fair" turnout in Azle, a "large, early vote" in Sansom Park and "just a trickle" of voters in Euless.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Howday Pardners!

May I extend to you and your guests a "BIG WELCOME" to the Fourth Annual Convention of the Texas Medical Assistants Association, from the City--"Where the West Begins".

Tie your horse to the hitchin rail and enjoy the round up of activities that we from Tarrant County have arranged for you. While you are here, if there is anything that you need, ask one of our Hostesses to help you.

The Hilton Hotel is in the center of town in Fort Worth, and the department stores are within a few blocks. The stores stay open until 9:00 P. M. on Friday.

The preparations for the Convention have been quite an event for us, and made us realize how wonderful people are when you ask for their help in preparing for such an occasion.

We are at your services and hope that your visit with us will be one you remember so that you will want to come back and visit with us real soon.

I would like to thank all of the members of Tarrant County Medical Assistants Society for the wonderful cooperation, work, time, and effort that they have given to make this Convention possible. You have proven we can work as a team, and what seemed to be a difficult task was made easier by your knowing how to get a job done the best way. I, too, believe that anything is possible with the members that we have, and again I thank you and hope that you too can relax and enjoy the Convention.

See you there.

Barbara Dickerson, President

DOCTORS CORNER

Urology deals with the treatment of diseases and injuries of the urinary system and the male genital organs. The majority of the patients are elderly people. Because of the rather personal nature of their illness and, in many cases, the advanced age of the patient there are several specific problems in dealing with urological patients.

When obtaining pertinent information from the patient, for his medical records, I would recommend that you be satisfied with little or no data regarding their illness. Unlike many sicknesses, with the patient most proud of discussing his or her many symptoms, the urological patient is often embarrassed because of the personal nature of his disease. Asking them rather casually as to why they have come to see the doctor, can often produce startling and embarrassing answers. This is particularly so if the waiting room is filled with relatives or other patients. It is probably best to just assume that the patient has some difficulties and would much prefer to discuss them with the doctor.

Secondly, as previously mentioned, these people are often elderly. Consequently they are fearful of the entire medical profession. They, in many cases, have never been to the doctor and still associate it with a prelude to sudden death. In this frame of mind, they are often easily confused and are prone to misinterpret even the most casual remark. Consequently it is most imperative to be specific in any instructions you will have to give them.

These people, because of their age and fears, will often seek reassurance and confirmation of any medical advice they have received from the medical assistant. In her effort to be friendly and helpful, the assistant should be careful in not crossing the thin line where she is practicing medicine. Many times the casual assurance that the patient will be perfectly all right can be misleading and occasionally detrimental to the patient's welfare. I would suggest that the medical assistant restrict her reassurance to the fact that the doctor is a good one and that all that can be done is being done.

In summary, I believe the medical assistant can best fulfill her role in the treatment of urological patients by exhibiting tact, friendliness, and assuming an attitude of helpfulness.

Willis H. Carter, M. D.

We want to publicly thank Dr. Joe B. Ellis for his very informative article on ANESTHESIOLOGY in our last months issue. It was indeed very interesting from the point of history and helping to understand the viewpoint a Medical Assistant should have to help the patients.

Lexicon

Hippocrates and other early writers failed to distinguish between arteries and veins. The Greek Phleps or Phlebos originally referred to either one. Skinner states, however, that the verb from which they were taken suggest "to gush," which seems more applicable to arteries than to veins. When arteria was used to designate the arteries, phlebos was finally restricted to the veins. In this latter sence it is still in use, as for example, in phlebitis or phlebotomy. Vena is the Latin term for vein. The vena cava received its name because it usually was empty after death. Galen thought that the veins arose in the liver. Avicenna observed that they were quite in comparison with the arteries. The word vein (veyne) had already appeared in English by 1400 A.D.

APRIL MEETING

Reverend James B. Ansley, Chaplain of Harris Hospital, gave us a very enlightening program on the spiritual side of the Medical Assistant's life at home and in the office.

Reverend Ansley's personality has a humorus side as well as a spiritual one, and we all thoroughly enjoyed his talk.

Don't think we have grown a halo since then, but we did find it most helpful in our daily dedication to our profession for the greater honor and glory of God.

THE FRIEND OF THE M.A. IS DR. JOSEPH F. McVEIGH

Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh has not only been interested in us, he has been active in helping to establish organizations, both local and State.

A native of Texas, he is a graduate of Texas University Medical Branch at Galveston, where he also served as Adjunct Professor of Anatomy. He has been practicing medicine in Texas forty years, and has been associated with The Coffey Clinic for thirty-seven years. Dr. McVeigh is a member of the Staff at Saint Joseph's Hospital and is a Fellow in the American College of Physicians.

Always an active member of organizations, he served as Past Vice-President of Texas Medical Association, Past President of Texas Heart Association, Past President of Texas Club of Internists, Past President of Tarrant County Medical Society, and Past President of Fort Worth Academy of Medicine.

Dr. McVeigh was aware of the needs of the local chapter of Medical Assistants, which was then unorganized. He advised them in many ways and was instrumental in getting the group accepted by the Tarrant County Medical Society.

As Chairman of the Board on Patient Care, he introduced in the House of Delegates of Texas Medical Association a resolution asking for the formation of the Texas Medical Assistants Association. As we all know, the resolution passed; and the man responsible, Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, will be our Master of Ceremonies at the Fourth Annual Convention of Texas Medical Assistants.

We owe him our deepest gratitude, and this tribute.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. JOS. F. McVEIGH

When our Society was new, and attendance was slim,
The girls would have quit if it hadn't been for him.

He was there to offer help, right from the very start,
He gave his time and experience, even more, he gave his heart.

His many ideas were put into effect,
Making our Society something to admire and respect.

For his Wisdom and Council and Unselfish Way..
We give this Tribute to Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh! !

CONVENTION COMMENTS

Convention time is here at last. Everything is in readiness for the big days, May 19 to 21.

All Tarrant County Members are asked to register Friday Night from 6 till 11:00 P. M. Also, if you have not been assigned to a certain job, please volunteer your services. Girls will be needed at the registration desk for relief work.

We are all looking forward to this great opportunity to meet the girls from the other counties, and we are indeed fortunate in being hostesses to this great affair.

Our State President, Judy Coleman, has been working very hard to make this Convention a success, and has come over to Fort Worth from Dallas many times to meet with us.

Everyone helping with this Convention has done a beautiful job. We're especiall proud of the promptness of the different counties in answering our questions and following instructions.

All the State Committee Chairman have been faithful in keeping up with the many duties assigned to them.

Tarrant County salutes these girls, and especially the home town girls, Shirley Whitmire, Convention Chairman, and Norma Collins, Co-Convention Chairman. Margaret Nixon, Credentials Chairman, deserves our vote of thanks for a big job well done, too.

Many of the Tarrant County girls are planning to stay both nights at the Hilton, so as to crowd a few extra hours into the Convention time.

Ask your Doctors to let you off if possible Saturday morning, May 20th, but if you work Saturday morning, don't go home and change your white uniform, come as is. A few white uniforms will add a Medical effect to this Convention

BY BLAIR JUSTICE
Star-Telegram Science Writer

In pre-World War I days at the University of Texas there was a tall (6-foot, 2½-inch) young man who began making a name for himself in two widely separated fields.

Among his fellow premedical students Joe McVeigh became noted for the highly exact drawings he made of cell structures in microscopic anatomy.

Among followers of a sport that was to become one of the biggest in America, Joe McVeigh was known as the captain of the University of Texas basket ball team.

Friday night, almost a half century later, Dr. Joseph Fielding McVeigh — his basket ball and microscopic anatomy behind him — received recognition for the reputation he has made among his fellow physicians in Tarrant County.

Historic Symbol

By secret ballot he had been voted the "doctor's doctor" of 1961 and was presented the gold-headed cane of the Tarrant County Medical Society at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

The presentation was made by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason.

A goldheaded cane has historically been a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration.

Young Joe, born in Fort Worth, made up his mind to be a physician while in the 7th grade at the old Fifth Ward Elementary School here.

But after completing his premedical course at Texas, McVeigh had to lay out a couple of years to make enough money to go to medical school. He turned to teaching. From 1913 to 1915 he was a chemistry and zoology teacher at Austin High School.

Finally, he went on to Galveston to get his M. D. at the University of Texas Medical School.

Dr. McVeigh said that by the time he finished a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland there was a mild depression that made it inadvisable to start practice. So he returned to teaching.

This time he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School. One piece of research he did was so enduring that only a few years ago a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala wrote a textbook on neurology in which Dr. McVeigh's contributions at Galveston were noted.

In 1924 Dr. McVeigh returned to his native city and in July of that year helped establish the Coffey Clinic at 306 W. Broadway, where he still practices internal medicine.

He and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd. They have a daughter, Judy, who is curator at the Fort Worth Art Center.

Still interested in teaching, he was dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing. He also was chief of staff at the hospital.

Dr. T. C. Terrell Gets Cane Award

Dr. Truman C. Terrell, a pathologist who has been practicing in Fort Worth for almost a half century, was awarded the Tarrant County Medical Society's gold-headed cane for 1962 Friday night.

The coveted cane, symbolic of distinction in medicine and a tribute from fellow physicians, was presented at the medical society's annual award dinner in River Crest Country Club.

Making the presentation was Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, last year's recipient.

About 200 physicians and their wives and guests were present to hear Dr. McVeigh recount some of the medical and civic contributions Dr. Terrell has made during his long and distinguished career.

* * *

AMONG THOSE present to witness the presentation was the honoree's wife, whom he met and married 50 years ago while interning in Kansas City, and their daughter, Mrs. George Thomas Smith.

Tracing Dr. Terrell's early career here, Dr. McVeigh noted that shortly after arriving in 1914 he became an instructor and later a professor at the old Fort Worth Medical College.

Dr. McVeigh, many now-prominent physicians throughout Texas benefitted from the teachings of Dr. Terrell.

Dr. Terrell also became owner and director of Terrell's Laboratories when he came here in 1914.

A leader in a number of professional societies, Dr. Terrell had the distinction in 1953 of serving as president of the Texas Medical Association at the time when the organization was approximately 100 years old.

* * *

HE IS A FORMER member of the Texas State Board of Health and former president of the Tarrant County Medical Society and the Texas Society of Pathologists, which he helped organize and of which he served an unprecedented five terms as president.

He also is a member of a number of other medical organizations and serves as one of the TMA delegates to the American Medical Association.

One of his recent accomplishments cited by Dr. McVeigh was the leading role he played in the building and equipping of the new All Saints Hospital.

The Texas Boys Choir presented a half-hour program at the dinner.

Gold Cane Winner—

Dr. McVeigh Is Day And Night Physician

By JEAN WYSATTA
Press Staff Writer

The tall, silver-mustached man moved toward a glass wall of his den. He pulled the draperies to command a private view of the golden season.

Autumn had laced the trees with gold and red. They tumbled down a gentle slope to the banks of the Trinity and west toward the horizon.

The man was Joseph F. McVeigh, M. D., who had given a good part of his life to be able to enjoy the scene with tranquility. Now he did — while wearing a royal blue smoking jacket.

HE COULD TOUCH a mosaic table he'd recently made. He could glance over to see a bronze sculpture he'd made of his wife. And nearby there were detective stories to be read. Some like Arthur Conan Doyle were for re-reading.

This was Dr. McVeigh on the eve of receiving his highest honor — the Gold Headed Cane awarded him by Tarrant County Medical Society Friday night at River Crest Country Club.

The cane annually goes to "a doctor's doctor" who is chosen by an unsigned "silent vote" among doctors themselves.

Dr. McVeigh, at home at 4300 Crestline, was the picture of a man at ease but yet still on the job in a way because he had a telephone in his room.

The look through his horn-rimmed glasses was somber when he said:

"I BELIEVE in seeing a patient day or night. Night if need be. My patients know that."

A ring of the telephone, a serious call and he could have been off to his offices at Coffey Clinic.

He says he was born "too many years ago" in Fort Worth. He was one of four children born to the Scotch-Irish Mr. and Mrs. William M. McVeigh. Father once owned a moving van business.

Miss Blanche McVeigh, Fort Worth artist, was one of those four children.

After graduation from old Central High, he went to the University of Texas to study medicine. But after three years and a sprint on the school basketball team, the young Joseph McVeigh ran out of money.

There was a necessary recess to teach science three years at Austin High School.

THEN, WITH HIS pockets jingling just enough, he went to Galveston to enter medical school. In 1920 he graduated, later interned a year at Cleveland.

The doctor and his wife had one daughter, Judy. Miss McVeigh is curator of Fort Worth Art Center museum.

After 37 years of practice in his home town, Dr. McVeigh remembers the first $10 he made. It was for administering an ether anesthetic.

Although he's had many professional tributes, perhaps the place where he's best-loved is at St. Joseph Hospital. He's been called "the father" of the present staff organization and also of the hospital's nursing school.

HE IS PAST CHIEF of staff at St. Joseph and past chief of medicine. He is also a past dean of the school of nursing.

His "pasts" include many ranks. He is also a past president of Tarrant County Medical Society.

Currently he is first vice president of St. Joseph Hospital advisory board.

Friday night the genteel-talking doctor was handed the gold headed cane by his predecessor, Dr. T. H. Thomason. But perhaps no other summed up the evening's sentiment so well as a friend and cane-winner himself. He was Dr. C. P. Hawkins, president of the society, who said:

"He's the kind of doctor that a doctor would trust with his own family."

Dr. Joseph McVeigh . . . hard-earned tranquility. — Press Staff Photo.

West to Ask Of All Berlin

Four Fort Worth men went goose hunting last week in Wharton County.

Each paid $10 a day for hunting privileges. They hunted two days. The total bag was two geese.

On the way back home, they stopped for refreshments at a tavern. The bartender got to chinning with them and soon learned all.

"You mean," he mused, arching his eyebrows, "you paid 10 bucks a day apiece just to shoot at geese?"

They nodded.

BILKO MANNER

The barkeep grew subtly thoughtful. It was obvious that his attitude was, "I can't let suckers like these get away."

Finally, he asked: "When does duck season open?"

"In a week," he was told.

"Lissen," the bartender said eagerly, in a Sergeant Bilko manner, "I've got a pond on my place—how would you guys like to do some duck hunting?"

money-raising talent.

A catastrophe, he says, once wiped out an entire Lions Club.
When the members reached the

After three weeks, the devil

"We're still full," replied St.

"Well, you're gonna have to

TOUGH LEAGUE

A couple of TCU followers were rehashing some of the football season highlights the other day.

Their favorite experience came at an Arkansas service station, where they paused on their way to Little Rock for the TCU-Arkansas game.

It was played, you'll recall, at that awkward stage of the season — during the World Series.

One of the TCU backers sang out to the station attendant: "You figure them Haws are gonna eat them Frawgs up?"

"I dunno," said the attendant, wagging his head. "That National League's tough to beat."

Connally Declines to Eliminate Self in 1962 Governor's Race

BY LESTER STROTHER
Navy Secretary John Connally declined Friday to eliminate himself as a candidate for governor of Texas in 1962.

At a press conference in Hotel Texas, he was asked pointblank:

"Mister secretary, can we definitely rule you out as a candidate for governor of Texas next year?"

His reply was:

"No, I don't think you ought to be that drastic."

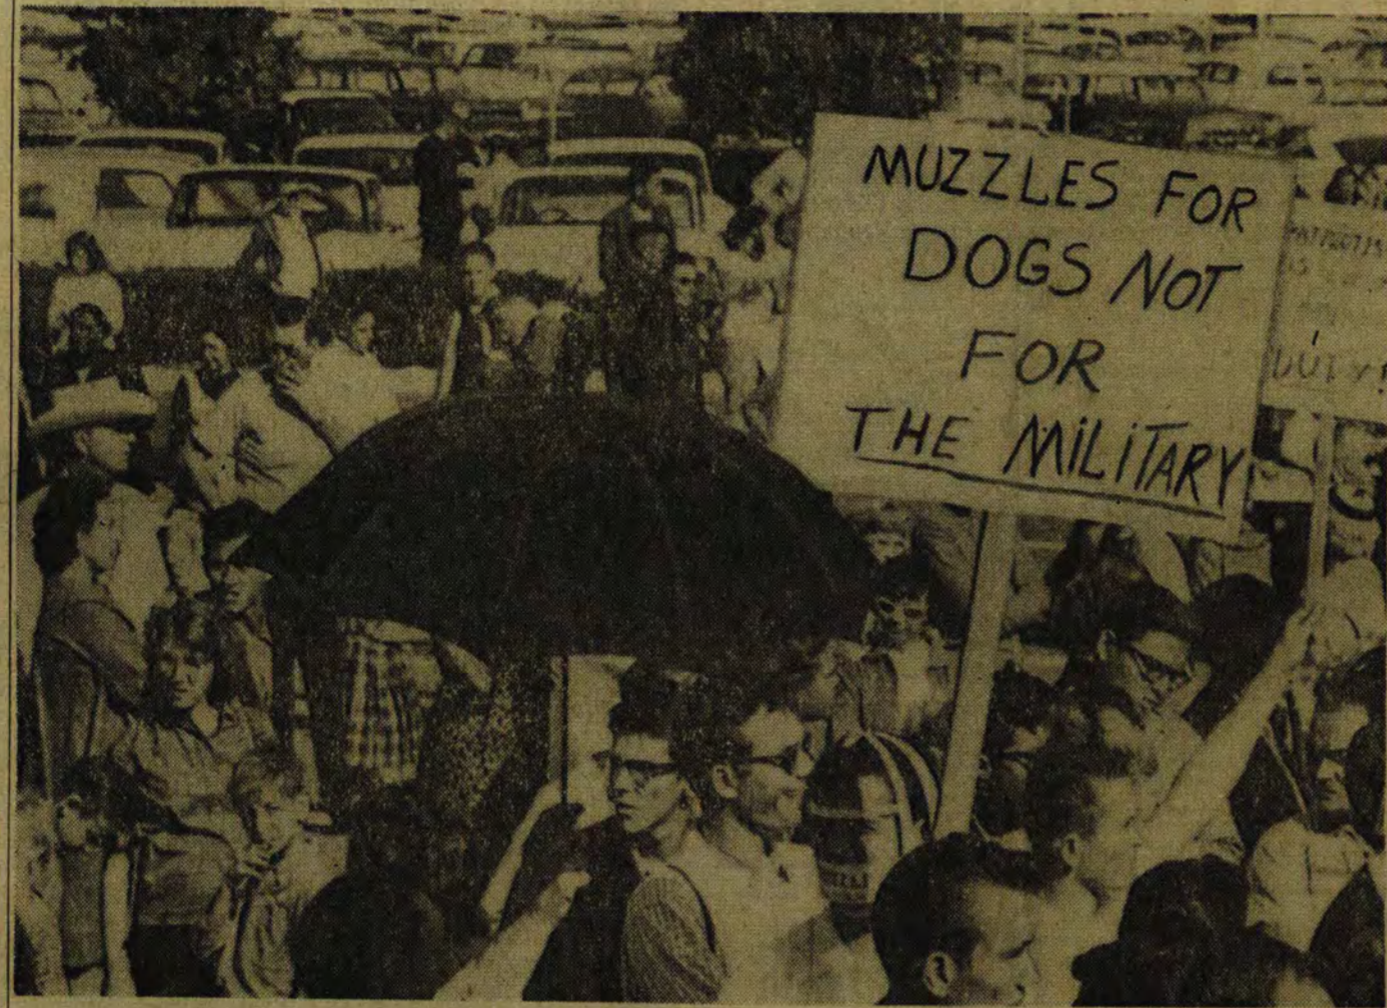

He went on to say that he had no idea whether Governor Daniel would run or not—this also was in answer to a question about whether he thought Daniel would make the race.

"I've tried as best I know how, without being undiplomatic, to stay away from all political discussions. But I can't.

"Even so, as secretary of the Navy, I don't believe I can inject myself into politics and still do a job as Navy secretary."

FUND BOOSTED

Goodfellows Of All Ages

BY CATHERINE GUNN
With a recent $5 contribution to the Star-Telegram Goodfellow Fund came a letter from a 94-year-old woman who said she received the amount "as a birthday gift" and "decided to pass it on where it will do the most good."

The Webelo Den of Cub Scout Pack 403 has sent $7. These young boys decided to deny themselves one Christmas present to make their contribution to needy children possible.

Unselfishness is not confined to an age group. It is something that many are taught while very young and something that grows strong as one learns more of compassion and understanding throughout a life.

Many needy children benefit from the unselfishness of contributors to the Goodfellow Fund. They gain not only in material ways but also in the knowledge that someone is deeply concerned for their welfare.

Pride in U. S. Role Urged by Kennedy

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 17 (AP)—President Kennedy declared Friday night the United States should be proud rather than dissatisfied to bear the heaviest burden in supporting free people around the globe.

Kennedy told 1,000 Arizonans celebrating the 50th year in Congress of the Democratic Senator, Carl Hayden, that only the United States and its "power, strength and commitments" permits dozens of nations to maintain freedom.

"If we did not bear the heavy burdens we bear, the United States would be isolated with only a few of the countries of Western Europe to look to," Kennedy said.

No matter how dissatisfied some may be, the Chief Executive said, and no matter how much they may wish for peace and contentment, all Americans should take pride that under administrations of both parties their country has taken a lead in various parts of the world and in international organizations stretching from the North Atlantic to Southeast Asia.

While other countries look to their own interests, Kennedy said, only the United States has obligations which extend from all sides of its boundaries.

SENATOR CARL HAYDEN

It is the United States, Kennedy said, "that really does the heavy work that makes it possible for these institutions to survive."

Kennedy joined in bipartisan tribute for Hayden, 84-year-old dean of the Senate, after an afternoon of welcome and relaxation on his fast-paced Western tour.

Kennedy and a score of political leaders were among about 1,000 who applauded Hayden at a $100 a plate Democratic dinner marking the senator's 50th year in Congress.

Hayden, who is up for re-election next year, was praised by Kennedy as a senator whose experience and seniority "neither the nation nor Arizona could afford to lose."

Hayden was elected to the House in 1912 when Arizona was admitted to the Union as the 48th state. He entered the Senate in 1927. He has served longer in Congress than any man in history.

Kennedy received a hearty reception on his arrival in Phoenix, which like the rest of Arizona gave a majority to former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, his Republican opponent, in last year's election.

The Chief Executive drove into the city with Hayden at his side in the rear of an open sedan and then hied off to a hillside mansion for the afternoon.

Friends, Neighbors Honor 'Mr. Sam'

BY ED JOHNSON
Star-Telegram Writer

BONHAM, Nov. 17—Friday in Bonham belonged to the people who called Sam Rayburn "Mr. Sam," not Mr. Speaker.

By early nightfall, an estimated 10,000 had filed by his bier in the Sam Rayburn Library—the young and the infirm, white and Negro, farmers and storekeepers.

They came from every pocket in his beloved Fourth Congressional District, and from other parts of Texas and other states.

They remembered shaking hands with him, or a familiar anecdote about him that happened decades ago.

LONDON, Nov. 17—The United States, Britain and France will seek new status for all Berlin, not simply the Western sector, in any negotiations with the Soviet Union, reliable sources said Friday night.

Removal of the concrete and barbed-wire erected by the Russians and East Germans to separate East and West Berlin also would be sought as part of the positive Western approach to solution of the city's future.

The Western powers will ask for Soviet recognition of their legal right to a voice in the affairs of East Berlin and will press upon the Russians the economic benefits of the entire city of restoration of all traffic between Eastern and Western sectors.

Removal Not Condition

The British, however, do not believe that removal of the wall should be considered by the three Western powers as an indispensable condition to any agreement with the Soviet Union on the city's future.

Diplomats believe that the U. S. administration shares this view. The position of both governments, it is said, is that they want to get negotiations started rather than find new reasons for delaying them.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer suggested Thursday that destruction of the wall be prerequisite to talks with the Soviet Union. Earlier a hint to the same effect was made by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Two Oppose Talks

Together the two comments were interpreted as indicating that French-German opposition to the negotiations has strengthened. For whatever else the West obtains from talks with the Soviet Union, the view here is that the Russians certainly would not pull down the wall before they began to talk.

Nor is there any great optimism over the West's ability to sell the destruction of the barrier to the Soviets over the conference table. Ultimate bargaining at East-West talks may be reduced to the question of opening a dozen new crossing points.

The agreed Allied negotiating position appears no nearer now than it did eight weeks ago when West German elections enforced a pause on Western diplomatic preparations, sources said. The diplomats doubt whether the coming series of talks between Adenauer and President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and between President Charles de Gaulle and the British leader will produce such a position.

Rocky, Wife Reveal Plan To Separate

© 1961 New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—Governor and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Friday night they had agreed on a legal separation in anticipation of a divorce.

The announcement, made from the Rockefeller family office at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, was a complete surprise to the governor's associates.

It could have important repercussions on Rockefeller's political future. He has already announced his intention to seek reelection next year and is generally regarded as an aspirant for the Republican nomination for president in 1964.

It was understood that the divorce suit would be instituted by Mrs. Rockefeller outside of New York, which recognizes only adultery as a cause of divorce. There was no indication how soon the suit would be started.

The cane, a symbol of the medical profession of respect and admiration, was turned over to Dr. McVeigh by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason, at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

Each year members of the local medical society cast secret ballots on the physician here they consider to be a "doctor's doctor"—a person of professional skill, personal integrity and friendship. Only doctors who have been members of the society for 25 years or more are eligible for the award. There were 92 in that category this year.

Dr. McVeigh has been in practice in Fort Worth since 1924, when he helped establish the Coffey Clinic, 306 W. Broadway, where he still has offices.

He was born and reared in Fort Worth, was graduated from Old Central High School and took his premedical training at the University of Texas.

Dr. Thomason first knew McVeigh as a classmate at the university. "He set the pace for us in embryology with his highly exact drawings of microscopic anatomy," Dr. Thomason said. "He was also known as the captain of the basket ball team."

Before entering the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston, Dr. McVeigh worked two years as a teacher of chemistry and zoology at Austin High School.

He was graduated from medical school in 1920 and interned at Charity Hospital in Cleveland. After internship he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School before entering practice in his home town.

Research work he did at medical school was recently cited in a textbook on neurology written by a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala.

Dr. McVeigh and his wife, Dorothy, live at 4800 Crestline Rd., on the same street and only four blocks away from last year's goldheaded cane award winner. The McVeighs have a daughter, Judy, who is

Council Settles Latest Dispute Over Zoning

Developer Receives Requested Status On Land Near Pike

The latest in a series of zoning disputes on the East Side in the vicinity of the Dallas-Fort Worth Turnpike was resolved by City Council Friday in favor of developer Joe B. Owen, who wants to build a motor hotel along the Southeast Loop just south of the turnpike.

The council approved by a 6 to 2 vote a zoning commission recommendation that Owen's property be rezoned from residential to commercial, a change that was strongly opposed by a group of home owners in the area.

Casting the only votes against the change were Councilmen Oliver Shannon and Don McLeland. Voting for the proposal were Mayor John Justin Jr., Mayor Pro Tem Frank Keeton, Councilwoman Reecy McKnight and Councilmen George Thompson III, Tommy Thompson and Gene Moore.

Liquor Banned

Owen agreed to a deed restriction on the property prohibiting the sale of liquor or alcoholic beverage of any kind "forever."

Frank Darby, leader of the opposition, charged that the zoning change would jeopardize the entire area and insinuate that Owen's motor hotel could become "a haven for drunken tourists and prostitutes."

In response to this Owen sarcastically said he also would insert a deed restriction guaranteeing that a house of prostitution could not be operated on the property.

In other business Friday the council delayed action on a proposal to de-annex 42 acres near Everman. The owner is seeking de-annexation because the city is unable at this time to provide utility services to the property.

Fees Opposed

Delayed action on a proposed ordinance providing additional meat inspectors to inspect the products of local meat plants. Several plant operators voiced the opinion that the fees the city is proposing to charge for the new service are too high.

Asked City Manager L. P. Cookingham to make a study to determine if the number of signal lights being installed at major intersections can be reduced. Councilman McLeland said he recently counted 24 separate signal heads at the intersection of W. Lancaster and Henderson. He wondered if all these are really necessary.

Received a report from Mayor Justin that officials of International Minerals & Chemical Corporation on Deen Rd. have agreed to take the necessary steps to insure that fumes from the plant do not escape into nearby residential areas, as they have done a number of times in the past.

Changed next week's council meeting from 9 a. m. Friday to 9 a. m. Wednesday because of Thanksgiving.

CANDIDATE—Desmond Barry, right, poses with Mrs. Barry and Senator John G. Tower as he announces his candidacy for congressman at large as a Republican.

Truck Line Owner Congress Candidate

Desmond A. Barry, Houston truck line operator who achieved national reputation as "the man the teamsters fought too hot to handle," announced in Fort Worth Friday his candidacy for congressman at large as a Republican.

The announcement was made in the Hotel Texas suite of U. S. Senator John G. Tower, who said he would support Barry if he were unopposed in the Republican primary, which will be in May.

Barry was in Fort Worth attending the Texas Manufacturers Association's 39th annual conference of Texas industry, at which Tower was a luncheon speaker.

Barry, a former Fort Worth resident, is owner of Galveston Truck Lines, Inc., which now is headquartered in Houston. He moved to Houston in 1955.

He said this is his first venture in politics as a candidate, although he was an active supporter of former Senator William Blakley in the latter's unsuccessful race with Tower for re-election.

He described himself as a man who had been a Republican for many years but only recently realized it. He said it had been his former belief that the "liberal-socialist" element of the Democratic Party could be defeated from within the party, but his belief now is that was wasted effort and he is convinced that the way to correct the drift to socialism is to work in and through the Republican Party.

His decision to run came only recently, he said, although he has been approached for the last 4½ years by three parties—Democrats, Republicans and Constitution Party. If he is elected, he said, he will support legislation to revise the national labor act, and noted that such legislation already is in preparation.

At an earlier press conference, Tower said his staff is preparing what he called a positive program of legislation, which includes revision of the NLRB.

Barry has been in demand as a speaker since the late 1950s, he said, when he successfully opposed an effort by the teamsters union to organize his workers. He said the workers themselves had no desire to join the union, but that James Hoffa's union instituted boycotts and other economic weapons in an attempt to force their organization.

He battled through the Interstate Commerce Commission and defeated the boycott. Reader's Digest published a report of his battle under the title: "The Man the Teamsters Found Too Hot to Handle."

Minuteman Firing Boost to Missiles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Nov. 17 (AP)—A Minuteman missile sprang from an underground pit Friday and streaked 3,000 miles in a major success which gave the United States a big boost toward pushbutton war capability.

This was the first successful firing of the missile from the steel and concrete hole—similar to those which will enable operational Minutemen to survive a nuclear attack and strike a retaliatory blow.

Brig. Gen. Sam Phillips, Air Force Minuteman program director, described the shot as "totally successful. It completely verifies our confidence in the Minuteman design."

An official of the Boeing Company, Minuteman test and assembly division explained: "Thanksgiving came early this year."

His exuberance was understandable. The first attempt to fire the missile from a silo failed in August when the vehicle exploded after clearing the hole. The failure raised some doubt whether the weapon would meet its combat-ready deadline of next summer.

But Friday's success put the program back on schedule, and Phillips said the test-firing tempo will accelerate sharply.

When Minuteman is operational, the Air Force plans the biggest missile buildup in this nation's history. The first three 50-missile squadrons will be buried on the Montana prairie near Malmstrom Air Force Base. A total of 600 Minutemen is planned by 1964, with defense officials considering an eventual force of 2,500.

Storable indefinitely without attention, Minuteman can be fired in salvos by the simple turning of a key in an underground control center miles away.

Minuteman is the first U. S. intercontinental range rocket powered by solid fuel, which also is used in the Navy's Polaris. This easy to handle propellant provides an escape from much of the complexity of the liquid fuel Atlas and Titan ICBMs.

Minuteman's nuclear warhead will be smaller than Atlas or Titan, but will compensate for this in numbers and greatly reduced cost.

All three missiles have a range of more than 6,000 miles. A mushroom of flame and smoke preceded Friday's missile out of its 90-foot-deep silo. Seconds later, the nose of the 58-foot projectile poked through the smoke cloud and streaked into the sky. All three stages fired as planned.

Award Given To Dr. McVeigh

BY BLAIR JUSTICE
Star-Telegram Science Writer

Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, internal medicine specialist, was named Friday night as the 1961 winner of the goldheaded cane award of the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol in the medical profession of respect and admiration, was turned over to Dr. McVeigh by last year's winner, Dr. T. H. Thomason, at a dinner at River Crest Country Club.

Each year members of the local medical society cast secret ballots on the physician here they consider to be a "doctor's doctor" — a person of professional skill, personal integrity and friendship. Only doctors who have been members of the society for 25 years or more are eligible for the award. There were 92 in that category this year.

Dr. McVeigh has been in practice in Fort Worth since 1924, when he helped establish the Coffey Clinic, 306 W. Broadway, where he still has offices.

He was born and reared in Fort Worth, was graduated from old Central High School and took his premedical training at the University of Texas.

Dr. Thomason first knew McVeigh as a classmate at the university. "He set the pace for us in embryology with his highly exact drawings of microscopic anatomy," Dr. Thomason said. "He was also known as the captain of the basket ball team."

Before entering the University of Texas Medical School at Galveston, Dr. McVeigh worked two years as a teacher of chemistry and zoology at Austin High School.

He was graduated from medical school in 1920 and interned at Charity Hospital in Cleveland. After internship he taught anatomy at the University of Texas Medical School before entering practice in his home town.

Research work he did at medical school was recently cited in a textbook on neurology written by a Swedish doctor at the University of Uppsala.

The New Holder of the Goldheaded Cane

Upon completing his pre-medical course in 1913, a certain young University of Texas student interrupted his studies and turned to teaching. He went to Galveston after two years, however, and received his M.D. at the University of Texas School of Medicine.

Again after a one-year internship at Charity Hospital in Cleveland the teaching profession again beckoned him. But in 1924 he returned to the practice of medicine never to depart from it again.

It is well for the medical profession, for his many patients and for the innumerable good causes he has served over the years since that he finally made that decision, which he had first embraced as a seventh grader in a Fort Worth elementary school. For he is Dr. Joe McVeigh, who has just been awarded the goldheaded cane by the Tarrant County Medical Society.

The cane, a symbol of respect and admiration in the profession, will be in his possession for one year. The award bespeaks the esteem in which Dr. McVeigh is held by his medical colleagues. Without doubt it is representative also of the high regard in which he is held by the many who have benefited by his professional excellence.

His contributions to the community and his profession, though primarily through the Coffey Clinic on W. Broadway, which he helped establish in 1924 and where he still practices internal medicine, have been made through many avenues of service. He has been dean of the St. Joseph Hospital School of Nursing, vice president of the Texas Medical Association and president of the Texas Heart Association.

Appropriately, he was instrumental in establishing the annual goldheaded cane award some 10 years ago to bring recognition to those of outstanding ability and performance in medical practice. We join his friends and colleagues in congratulating him on having now received that award and in thanking him for the services he has rendered in earning the right to possess it.

MEDICAL SOCIETY HONOR

Dr. T. C. Terrell Gets Cane Award

Dr. Truman C. Terrell, a pathologist who has been practicing in Fort Worth for almost a half century, was awarded the Tarrant County Medical Society's gold-headed cane for 1962 Friday night.

The coveted cane, symbolic of distinction in medicine and a tribute from fellow physicians, was presented at the medical society's annual award dinner in River Crest Country Club.

Making the presentation was Dr. Joseph F. McVeigh, last year's recipient.

About 200 physicians and their wives and guests were present to hear Dr. McVeigh recount some of the medical and civic contributions Dr. Terrell has made during his long and distinguished career.

AMONG THOSE present to witness the presentation was the honoree's wife, whom he met and married 50 years ago while interning in Kansas City, and their daughter, Mrs. George Thomas Smith.

Tracing Dr. Terrell's early career here, Dr. McVeigh noted that shortly after arriving in 1914 he became an instructor and later a professor at the old Fort Worth Medical College.

Dr. McVeigh, many now-prominent physicians throughout Texas benefitted from the teachings of Dr. Terrell.

Dr. Terrell also became owner and director of Terrell's Laboratories when he came here in 1914.

A leader in a number of professional societies, Dr. Terrell had the distinction in 1953 of serving as president of the Texas Medical Association at the time when the organization was approximately 100 years old.

HE IS A FORMER member of the Texas State Board of Health and former president of the Tarrant County Medical Society and the Texas Society of Pathologists, which he helped organize and of which he served an unprecedented five terms as president.

He also is a member of a number of other medical organizations and serves as one of the TMA delegates to the American Medical Association.

One of his recent accomplishments cited by Dr. McVeigh was the leading role he played in the building and equipping of the new All Saints Hospital.

The Texas Boys Choir presented a half-hour program at the dinner.
