Additionally, to provide a fair process that impacts the defendant's personal liberty with community safety always the priority.

OBJECTIVE

The primary objective of the Tarrant County Pretrial Services Agency is to gather thorough and accurate information on all defendants targeted by the guidelines established by the District and Criminal Court Judges of Tarrant County, who meet the criteria for release on personal bond. Although the information is primarily used to determine a defendant's eligibility for release on personal bond, it may also be used in other decisions relevant to a defendant's case. As many of these decisions are made relying solely on the information provided by Pretrial Services, accuracy and thoroughness are critical factors. The information must be gathered and presented in an unbiased, professional manner to sustain the judiciary's confidence in the Agency. At no time should Pretrial Services be viewed as an advocate for the release of defendants. Pretrial release information is valuable only when obtained and substantiated in an exhaustive and precise manner. The quality of the information gathered reflects on the Agency as a whole, as well as the professionalism of each individual employee. More importantly, the information may have a direct impact on both the defendant's liberty and the community's safety.

HISTORY AND AUTHORITY

The Tarrant County PreTrial Release Program was created in 1979 by Tarrant County Commissioners Court, with grant funds received from the Criminal Justice Division of the Texas Governor's Office. PreTrial Release operated as an independent county department until September 1992, functioning under the day to day operational oversight of the Criminal Judges for Tarrant County, with budgetary control maintained by Commissioners Court.

In October 1992, Commissioners Court became responsible for the departmental budget and daily operations. The Commissioners Court appointed the County Administrator's Office to provide direct supervision and management of the department. In October of 2001, with the approval of the Tarrant County Commissioners' Court, the PreTrial Release Program underwent a name change to Tarrant County Pretrial Services.

Tarrant County Pretrial Services was created to fulfill these basic functions:

- To release from the sheriff's custody, as soon as possible, all arrested persons pending judicial action in local courts, who meet the agency's requirements and who have the characteristics which indicate they will appear in court, as directed, while their case is being adjudicated.

- To reduce pretrial detention costs and to alleviate crowded jail situations.
- To inspire confidence in the criminal justice system by allowing deserving defendants with community ties to return to their social, cultural and economic environments.

The establishment of Pretrial Services as a County department, as well as the development of many of the procedural aspects of the Program, is based on criminal laws in Texas that are relevant to personal bonds. Article 17.42 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure authorizes a magistrate to grant personal bonds and under what conditions, as well as what must be stated on the bond itself. Article 17.01 and 17.03 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure defines a personal bond, provides information regarding release on personal bond as well as requisites of a personal bond.

STRUCTURE/ORGANIZATION

Pretrial Services is currently under the direct supervision and authority of the Administrator's Office. The Criminal Justice Manager from the Administrator's Office oversees the administrative and operational functions of the Agency. The Pretrial Services Director is responsible for the daily operational processes of Pretrial Services insuring that efficient and quality services are provided by the Agency. Other Pretrial Services personnel include: two (2) Supervisors; nine (9) Pretrial Release Officers; two (2) Office Clerks and one (1) Secretary/Bookkeeper.

The Pretrial Services office is located in downtown Fort Worth in the Tarrant County Corrections Center at 100 North Lamar Street. In order to "screen" and interview defendants as soon after they are booked in as possible, Pretrial Services staffs a desk in the Book-In Section of the Tarrant County Jail, as well as the Arlington City Jail. Staff are also on hand to screen and interview Fort Worth arrestees at the 350 Belknap Facility in downtown Fort Worth. In addition, mechanisms are in place to interview and release eligible defendants from other Tarrant County municipalities via telephone and/or fax interview/release policies and procedures.

The Pretrial Services Agency maintains staff coverage six (6) days a week, from 6:00 AM to 7:00 PM on Monday, 6:00 AM to 11:30 PM Tuesday thru Thursday, from 6:00 AM to 10:00 PM on Friday, and 8:00 AM to 5:00 PM on Saturday. The office is closed on Sundays and official county holidays.

CRITERIA FOR RELEASE:

Pretrial Services assists in the elimination of overcrowding in the county and City jails by allowing qualified defendants an opportunity to be released on personal bond while pending trial. In considering an individual for release, this agency is concerned with two (2) basic factors: 1) whether the person will appear for all scheduled court settings and 2) whether the person poses a serious threat to the safety of the community if released on bond.

The guidelines or policies used in determining a defendant's eligibility for release on personal bond as well as the "Exclusion List" were established for the Pretrial Services Agency by the District and Criminal Court Judges of Tarrant County. The Policy is reviewed annually and revisions are made as needed.

The most recent revision of the Pretrial Services Release Policy follows:

Pretrial Services Release Policy

The following Release Policy is adopted by the Judges hearing Criminal Cases in Tarrant County, Texas:

The Pretrial Services Agency may interview and consider all defendants who are eligible and qualified for release on personal bond. Defendants in order to be eligible for consideration for release on personal bond must reside within a 50 mile radius of the Tarrant County Courthouse, in addition to having strong ties to the community and providing three references to the Pretrial Services Agency for verification of any required information. All Defendants also are subject to the offense exclusions hereinafter set out. Pretrial Services must verify that all participants in the Pretrial Services program are fully qualified and eligible for release on a personal bond before recommendation of such bond. However, the Judge having jurisdiction of a particular defendant or case which may be indicted into or pre-assigned to a Court, may order the release of such person regardless of the offense.

Pretrial Services may not interview or consider any defendant who is subject to any of the following situations without the approval of the Judge of the Court.

- Persons who are charged with Article 42.12, Sec. 3 (g) (a) (1) or (2) offenses.
- Persons who are charged with any First Degree Felony.
- Persons who have a final felony conviction with a sentence to IDTDCJ.
- Persons who have been on probation for a felony within five years prior to the date of the new offense.
- Persons who are known or admitted members of any criminal street gang as defined in Section 71.01 (d) Texas Penal Code.
- Persons who are charged with an offense while on bond for another offense or while on probation for another offense.
- Persons who have a bond amount exceeding $10,000.
- Persons who are charged with a felony offense who have been previously convicted of the same felony offense.
- Persons who have two or more cases pending filed from the same criminal episode.

In addition, Pretrial Services may not interview or consider any Defendant who is charged with any offense hereafter set out on the attached exclusions list without the approval of the Judge of the Court. Pretrial Services shall distribute this policy to all police agencies in Tarrant County for observance.
